TRIPS GONE BY.....

Perfect North Slopes – January 14, 2018

A chilly start turned into the perfect ski day and provided great fun for twenty skiers and boarders. The sun and good snow provided great conditions and runs were in good shape. Participants included six young people skiing for the first time! By all reports, they are new converts to the sport! Robin and Howard tested their skills by doing a few runs down the NASTAR racing course while Tara, Dan, & Barb finished their day by going tubing.

Salt Lake City - December 28, 2017 – February 4, 2018

The LSSC bought back the popular New Year's trip this year by going to Salt Lake City, Utah. Three states were represented by the 14 participants - 12 adults and two teenagers. The weather was a pleasant 40° in town and low to mid 30's on the ski hill. Multiple rental vehicles made transportation to the ski areas easy and destinations flexible while varied skill levels among participants ensured that everyone had someone to ski with.

The group elected to visit multiple area ski resorts including Alta, Brighton, Solitude and Snowbasin. Although the snow fall this year was less than usual, these resorts had ample runs open ranging from beginner to advanced, although the most challenging runs were not all available--so a few of the expert skiers were not able to get their fill of "steep & deep" skiing. One of the skiers reveled in the terrain parks or created jumps whenever an opportunity presented itself. Another intrepid skier made his own path through the woods and into the river – face first! He escaped without water logged boots and cheerfully shared his adventure at lunch.

The accommodations in downtown Salt Lake at the Chrystal Inn were very nice and were highlighted by an excellent breakfast buffet. The Inn had a beautiful indoor pool and hot tub for post skiing relaxation. Après Ski opportunities were bountiful since many restaurants and brewpubs were close to the hotel and the mild temperatures made walking pleasant. One evening was set aside for dinner at the always popular Red Iguana Mexican café. New Year's Eve was celebrated at the Market Street Grill, which specializes in seafood.

The variety of ski options at the multiple resorts available from this central location together with the holiday timeframe made this a popular trip and one that it will likely be high on the list for future years.

Granada and Sierra Nevada in Brief.....

Granada's dramatic alpine backdrop is the Sierra Nevada range, which extends about 75km from west to east and into Almería province. Its wild snow-capped peaks include the highest point in mainland Spain, while the lower reaches of the range, known as Las Alpujarras (sometimes just La Alpujarra), are dotted with tiny scenic villages. From July to early September, the higher elevations offer wonderful multiday trekking and day hikes. Outside of this period, there's risk of seriously inclement weather, but the lower Alpujarras are always welcoming, with most snow melting away by May.

The 862-sq-km Parque Nacional Sierra Nevada, Spain's largest national park, is home to 2100 of Spain's 7000 plant species, among them unique types of crocus, narcissus, thistle, clover, poppy and gentian. Andalucía's largest ibex population (about 5000) is here, too, frolicking above 2800m. Surrounding the national park at lower altitudes is the Parque Natural Sierra Nevada, with a lesser degree of protection.

Along the southern edge of the protected area, Las Alpujarras is a 70km-long jumble of valleys along the southern flank of the Sierra Nevada. It is a beautiful, diverse and even slightly strange place. Its landscape of arid slopes, deep crags and egg-white villages look as if they were spilled onto the mountainside, the towns on the mountain's lower belts simmer with spiritual seekers, long-term travelers and rat-race dropouts, while the higher villages have a disorienting timelessness.

Even the most-visited Alpujarran towns are appealing, as the villages' Berber-style flat-roofed houses and the winding lanes between them look out on hillsides that have been carefully terraced and irrigated since the earliest Moorish times. With well-trod footpaths connecting each settlement, it's a delightful area to explore on foot.

Torremolinos is a Mediterranean resort town on southern Spain's Costa del Sol, known for its sandy beaches such as El Bajondillo and La Carihuela. Nightlife, dining and shopping are centered on Calle San Miguel. Away from the beachfront and its high-rise hotels are several golf courses and amusement parks, as well as pockets of traditional Andalusian culture such as the village of El Calvario.

SIERRA NEVADA / GRANADA and TORREMOLINOS, SPAIN

March 10 – 19, 2018

There are few places in the world where you can ski in the morning then head to the coast for a swim in the afternoon, but the proximity of Sierra Nevada to the Med allows this. Don't be fooled into thinking that the skiing will be second rate either. 21 lifts serve 107 km of piste at the Sierra Nevada but it can get busy at the weekends with bottlenecks at the lifts. The pistes lend themselves to the intermediate but there is ample off-piste skiing for the advanced riders. Off the pistes, there are some good restaurants and lively bars. If you get bored or the snow is not as good in the Sierra Nevada, just head for a beach! A halfpipe was added to the snowpark Sulayr in 2011 (165m long and 6m high). It is the biggest in Spain. The snow junior world championship was celebrated in this park. It is the longest Slopestyle line in Europe with over 77 different obstacles and up 46 possible in any one run!

The Snowboard and Freestyle World Championships 2017 were hosted here in March.

As one of Europe's highest resorts it is very snowsure and typically has a long season. Traditionally the season starts around the end of November running through to the first week of May. The longest season on record was the winter of 2008/9 which ran from the 15th November 2008 until the 17th May 2009. Sierra Nevada literally means "Snowy Mountain Range" and it includes some of the highest peaks in Europe, not to mention the highest concentration of peaks over 3,000m in the country. The Mulhacen at 3,482m is the Iberian Peninsula's highest.

The ski terrain is majestically overlooked by the jagged glacier-formed Veleta peak at 3,398m, Spain's third highest after Aneto (3,404m) in the Pyrenees. Due to the altitude, the ski slopes are above the tree line and generally take the form of ski fields rather than narrow prepared tracks - something that favours the more nervous skier in particular as well as generally giving a sense of confidence all round, especially for off piste fanatics!

The Sierra Nevada ski resort offers its visitors a wide and ever expanding range of facilities as well as a ski terrain to suit skiers and boarders of all standards.

Pricing is only $2,199 for all this! Remember that pricing is not final until ticketing due to fluctuations in currency rates and airline surcharges/taxes. Contact trip leader Janet Graham Jones – 859.420.5016 or jgJones@uky.edu
